Technical / Tactical

- Plays as a left center-back (LCB) in 4 defenders formations, even though he is right footed

Psychological

- Shows aggression and intensity in defense, performing well under pressure.

- Excellent in aerial duels, especially on set pieces.
- Tackling and marking are key strengths, and he shows good defensive positioning.
- Needs to improve his technique, especially ball control and passing. He should stick to short and simple passes, unless under pressure.
- Could benefit from avoiding risky dribbles and high-risk plays.
- Demonstrates calmness when defending but occasionally takes unnecessary risks with long passes or difficult plays.
- Has strong anticipation and instincts, knowing when to commit to tackles and headers

Physical

- Physically imposing with great strength and aerial reach
- Could improve mobility in space, especially when defending against quicker opponents or in more open situations.

Social

- Works well in a team-oriented system, showing good teamwork and understanding of his role in defensive structures

Summary

Gun-Hee Kim is a strong and physically dominant center-back, who excels in aerial duels, set pieces, and tackling. His height and strength make him a valuable asset defensively, particularly when dealing with high balls and crosses. He reads the game well, showing good defensive positioning and anticipation.

However, Kim's passing and technique need considerable refinement, especially when under pressure. He tends to waste possession with risky long balls and should focus on playing short, simple passes to retain control. Ball control and touch are other areas where improvement is needed to elevate his game. Given his aggressive playing style and his ability to thrive under pressure, Kim could develop into a reliable defender, but his defending in open space and decision-making on the ball are key areas for growth. At this stage, he's a solid defender with decent potential, but not yet ready for a higher level without addressing these weaknesses.
